Maintaining cultural identity and diversity, ensuring the further existence of ethnic minorities and the persistence of old languages, but also improving the living conditions of indigenous peoples and securing their survival in the modern world, these are the things this donor group are interested in.

It may be Indios in the Amazon region, indigenous peoples in Papua New Guinea or the maintenance and promotion of the old Indian culture in North America. A focus lies on the support of children. The focus lies not only on the communication of old customs and languages but also in the structure of the social society and schools.

When it comes to donor calls on the subject of children in the Third World Countries in general, this list has had above average response quota.
